Developing global health citizens through a European partnership: working with student co-researchers and digital champions to investigate intercultural learning

University of Southampton

The aim of this research is to explore with student co-researchers how they experience becoming members of an international professional community, in order to understand the ways in which a pedagogy of multiple partnerships has impacted on their learning.

The research question asks: in what ways does an international partnership project in healthcare, carried out in two countries, influence and impact upon Occupational Therapy students' knowledge, capability and identity as global healthcare citizens?
