

Silicon core fibers for nonlinear photonics

A. C. Peacock, Optoelectronics Research Centre, University of Southampton, UK

This paper will review progress in the development of nonlinear devices from the silicon optical fibre platform. The nonlinear performance will be benchmarked through demonstrations of high-speed all-optical wavelength conversion, modulation, and continuum generation across a broad wavelength range.