

Participant Information

Ethics reference number: ERGO/FPSE/23318	Version: 1	Date: 2016-08-26
Study Title: The value exchange on the Web
Investigator: Rafael Melgarejo Heredia

Please read this information carefully before deciding to take part in this research. If you are happy to participate you may be asked to sign a consent form. Your participation is completely voluntary.

What is the research about? This is a research project which aims to understand the value-values exchange process on the Web. The study is supported by the University of Southampton. At the end of the study, you may email the researcher rm2e14@soton.ac.uk and ask for the study findings and see how your data was used.

Why have I been chosen? You have been approached because you are part of a randomly sample.

What will happen to me if I take part? You will attend a workshop that will take up to 240 mins in total.

Are there any benefits in my taking part? It is expected that the study will add knowledge to understand about the exchange process of value and values on the Web.

Are there any risks involved? There are no particular risks associated with your participation.

Will my data be confidential? All data collected is anonymous and no personal data is collected.

What happens if I change my mind? You may withdraw at any time and for any reason.

What happens if something goes wrong? Should you have any concern or complaint, contact me if possible rm2e14@soton.ac.uk, otherwise please contact the FPSE Office fpas-grad@soton.ac.uk or any other authoritative body such as the Head of Research Governance rgoinfo@soton.ac.uk 02380595058.