Open Discussion to Inform Continued Development

How severe is the problem of unpublished results?

To what extent does 'Open Access' address the problem?

Are Repositories, Blogs etc a viable alternative / accompaniment?

What should be stored?

And how long should it be stored for?

What should be made available?

What role and function should a global database of all structures serve?

How should IPR be handled?

What are the copyright concerns on derived information arising from databases?

To what extent should peer review play in data publication?

You don't get something for nothing...what are the business models behind data publication?
